

British Society for Developmental Biology

The British Society for Developmental Biology (BSDB) is the only UK academic society that supports everyone with an interest in Developmental Biology (and related fields such including Stem Cell Biology, Regeneration and Evolutionary Biology).

We have more than 1,000 members, including researchers at all levels, lecturers and students.

How to Join:

Download the membership application form at www.bsdb.org

The cost of annual student subscription is only £15

Student Membership benefits include:

- BSDB travel grants to cover costs of attendance at the Spring and Autumn BSDB-sponsored meetings
- Company of Biologists Travel Grants to cover costs to attend meetings or courses outside the UK (usually up to a maximum of £600)
- Become a part of an international scientific community that provides considerable social and networking opportunities